THE TILTON-BEECHER CASE.

The Jury Discharged—They Stood 9 to 3.

BROOKLYN, July 2.—At 11:17 A. M. the jury came into court, which was densely crowded, and stated they were unable to agree, when they were discharged. The jury stood 9 for Beecher and 3 for Tilton.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Early this morning the jury in the case of Tilton against Beecher breakfasted; then sent a note to Judge Neilson stating that it was impossible for them to agree. The judge returned answer that he would be at court at 10 o'clock, and would then send for counsel and communicate with the jury. At that hour Judge Nelson took his seat, and was followed by lawyers Porter, Shearman, Abbott, Hill and Tracy for defendant and Morris and Pearsall for plaintiff. At 11 o'clock the jury filed into court, and in reply to the question, "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" Foreman Carpenter replied, "We have not; we regret very much we have found it impossible to agree." Judge Nelson stated he had learned by a note from the jury early this morning that in their opinion they should be discharged, as they could not agree and some of them were suffering in health. He experienced the force of that application very sensibly, and had pondered upon it all the earliest moment, giving to counsel and others an opportunity of being present. As they were about to separate, he would like them to carry away ...the only recollection, so far as they could, to remove whatever chagrin they felt at being detained so long. He wished them to recollect the fact that not until yesterday did they suggest that they could not agree and that suggestion came from their foreman, signed by eleven, and accompanied by another from one juror, who thought that an agreement was possible. While he had a perfect regard for and confidence in the opinion of the eleven and the explanation of the foreman, he thought something was due to the twelfth juryman. His honor had the same thing on his mind yesterday at 4 o'clock, and he allowed the jury an hour to devote his time to bringing about an agreement as far as he could. He learned from a note they were unable to agree, and that the disagreement was in consequence of the weight of testimony and the incredibility of some of the witnesses, as appeared to his honor and every person conversant with the case. It was impossible for him to help them by any suggestion. Not even in his charge could he find means of helping them on that point. The weight of testimony rested with the jury. It was for them to say what witnesses they could believe and what they could not. The court had no right to interfere. He was glad to be assured that the disagreement did not arise from any want of unanimity on any of the issues, and there were some points on which he could do nothing. There was one point to which attention had been called, and he would like to learn from them explicitly that the application to go into the testimony had not in any way clouded their vision or occupied their thoughts directly or indirectly.

Foreman Carpenter assured Judge Neilson he was right, as he had questioned many of the jury and all told him it had not been in their thoughts. The judge said he was much gratified to hear that, and since they had told him they could not agree he would therefore discharge them. The jury then stated they were not discharged. Juryman Thayer arose and said he wished it to be understood that the jury did not stand 11 to 1, as rumor had it. Judge Neilson then asked them to remain seated for a few moments, as a congratulation, before their discharge, but juryman Jeffries objected, and the judge allowed them to leave the court room. There was much confusion, every person crowding forward to shake the hand of every juryman. Mrs. Beecher went to the railing and shook hands with each juryman as he passed.

Notwithstanding the fact that all the jurors stated they had taken a solemn oath never to reveal the secrets of the jury room, the following has been ascertained by interviewers: One juror said, "We stand to-day precisely as we did when we went up stairs last night. We have had a stormy day ago." Another states that at one time the jury stood 11 to 1; again 9 to 3; and still later, 5 to 7. There was an irreconcilable difference of opinion as to the credibility of witnesses. Juror Hall said at times the discussions were very animated. When they retired a week ago there was a small majority for defendant, but after the evidence was reviewed and discussed to-day it was to throw the benefit of certain doubts in favor of defendant. Still, another juror said at one time the tide in favor of Tilton was very low; it was even less than three. At another time the vote stood six to six.

A Union reporter learned from a semi-authoritative source that when the jury retired they stood seven to nine, Beecher and Tilton men, and one doubtful, though leaning to Tilton. This doubtful one afterwards came over to Beecher, and on the second ballot it stood eight to four, eight for Beecher and four for Tilton. On which the evidence was requested and sent up, one of the four, after its examination, went over to Beecher's side. On final ballot they stood nine to three, nine for Beecher and three for Tilton.

The Brooklyn Eagle, Saturday, a few of the Beecher men who had been using gigantic efforts to convert Jeffrey, Davis and Fiske to their side, had so far succeeded that these men at last consented to bring a verdict for Beecher. But the jury then been called to the court room, Beecher would have gone forth with a declaration of innocence by twelve men sworn to decide on the charges against him by evidence admitted and allowed by the court during the trial. Some were in favor of going into court at once, but, unfortunately, for Beecher, it was decided to wait for 10 minutes o'clock that evening, when they would stand to the presiding judge their verdict. At this moment of importance one of Beecher's men made an indiscreet remark, which, though not affecting the evidence, caused much excitement, and that the effect of silencing some. Thus the work of many hours of tedious and conscientious argument was cheated of its result, and gloom crowned over the lengthy deliberations of the jury, which could not be dispelled. Persistent efforts were made to counteract the result of the indiscretion, but the minority of Jeffrey, Davis and Davis retiring to the grand jury, they had compacted to abandon emphatically declined to hold any further argument on the case. They were determined to stand by Tilton. On Sunday there was no balloting, many of the jury had religious scruples and declined doing so. The ballot, however, on Monday showed that they had returned to Tilton, as the vote stood nine for Beecher and three for Tilton, and from this time forward there was no variation. When discharged they stood the same. Lawyer Shearman said to day counsel for defendant had been visited several times by a friend of the juryman, who, the last time he visited his client could be purchased. Shearman declined to state whether they would move for a new trial. Rumor is that plaintiff's counsel will do so, and if they do move, by placing the case on the October calendar, and that as soon as it is called, a motion will be made for a change of venue.

Frank Moulton Defies Them.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The following card from Moulton appears in the Argonaut this morning:

TO THE EDITOR: The New York Tribune, a paper published in the interest of Beecher, published this morning the following paragraph: The evidence of J. M. Pyneall in the Loeder case, reported in full elsewhere, so seriously implicates Moulton in the manufacture of the false affidavits of Pierce and Loeder that counsel for Beecher have already taken steps to indict him for subornation of perjury, and will make application to go before the next grand jury. If Moulton returns to Brooklyn before the grand jury meets he will be arrested and, on examination, be held preliminary to being sent up by the grand jury."

A judicial examination of the origin of the Price-Loeder affidavits and my connection with them, is exactly the thing I desire. Accordingly I have returned to Brooklyn to meet the menace of Beecher's minions, and hereby challenge and defy them to institute their threatened proceedings.

FRANCIS D. MOULTON.

The Loeder-Price Conspiracy—How the Tables may Turn.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The inquiry being made of Colonel Beecher in the truth of the report that Moulton was to be arrested on charges arising out of developments in the Loeder-Price perjury case, reached the inquirer to lawyer Beecher, who replied that Moulton was in Brooklyn to be arraigned by the consulting with Gen. Butler. When asked if Moulton was to be arrested, Shearman said the question was one he could not answer, but said the counsel that next week there will be Beecher has intimated that it would be to be at the bottom of the Loeder-Price conspiracy. He told Shearman on Wednesday he would be called to testify as to his connection with the case.

The Tribune Still Trying to "Pull the Old Man Through."

NEW YORK, July 2.—Referring to Beecher, the Tribune says: The events of the last few days, in connection with the Loeder case, will cause a stronger revulsion in his favor than even viewed in acquittal could have produced. Yesterday's proceedings before Justice Kilby showed as counsel for plaintiff sitting around a table with Francis D. Moulton, assisting two irredeemable blackguards to make false affidavits for the purpose of regularly influencing the jury; a performance in which the modern Bayard helped them and took a parties' behavior active share. Tilton meantime remaining in the background, while the false witnesses and the papers charging his friend made ready. Price and Loeder had wife with adultery. Price and Loeder had the word liar stamped all over them. Their monstrous tale was absolutely incredible from beginning to end. The men were not ingenuous and plausible romancers, but were reckless, common, blundering rogues, whom no one of average intelligence, let alone a trained lawyer, would be excusable for trusting a single moment. Yet this sort of testimony the plaintiff and his counsel put into the case, and when the falsehood was acknowledged they would not consent that the jury should be informed of the deception. The transaction will put the seal upon the condemnation with which the public long ago visited the Tilton set, and it cannot fail to have a great influence in stimulating kindly feeling and confidence towards the man who was intended as the victim.

The Official Score of the Rifle Match.

DUBLIN, July 2.—The official score of the international rifle match on Tuesday, which is published to-day, gives Dakin 52 instead of 51, at 1,000 yards, and makes the number of points by which the Americans beat the Irish 18, instead of 88. The contest for the Abercorn cup, at Dolly Mount, ended to-day. Ed. Johnson, of the Irish team, won by a total of 333. Rigby and Pollock made higher scores, but as they had been winners before, the cup was awarded to Johnson. Of the Americans the best scores were—Fulton, 371; Gildersleeve, 359; Bodine, 351; Coleman, 350. The Americans won several all-comers prizes to-day.

Dublin journals, referring to Mayor Leach's retirement from the captaincy of the Irish team, concur in saying Ireland is indebted to him for long-range shooting, which he established under great difficulties.

THE NEW YORK HERALD ON THE OHIO DEMOCRACY.

The New York Herald led the attack on the Ohio Democracy, on account of their inflation platform. On the day after the convention the Herald, in the course of a somewhat lengthy editorial article criticising the platform, said:

The position of the Ohio Democrats is embarrassing in consequence of their views on the great question of the currency. A majority of them are arrant inflationists. The financial heresies of his own State are a source of great embarrassment to Senator Thurman, who needs the support of the Ohio Democrats in the Presidential convention, but knows that he has no chance of an election to the Presidency on an inflation platform. The inflation tendency of the Ohio Democrats is their weak point. Sunset Cox has been called to Ohio as a missionary in this emergency, and he made one of his most witty and captivating speeches at Columbus on Wednesday evening. He is popular with the Ohio Democrats and it was a good stroke of policy to bring him back to his old State to smooth the way for Thurman by acting as a missionary among the financial heathen. It was foreseen that it would be fatal to the Democratic party at large for the Ohio convention to adopt an inflation platform, and Thurman's friends played a good card in bringing Cox back among his old admirers to smooth down the difficulties of the situation.

Unfortunately, Mr. Cox has had no success as a missionary. The platform adopted yesterday is as about as square-footed a piece of inflation absurdity as could have been expressed. This platform is at least honest. It expresses without subterfuge or trimming, the real views, not only of the Democracy of Ohio, but of most of the Western States. It is quite possible that the Democrats may carry the Ohio election on this preposterous platform, for the Republicans of the West are also infected with the inflation heresy; and, as the Republican platform in Ohio is substantially a hard money platform, the Democracy of that State expect to entice the Republican inflationists into their ranks. But success on such a platform will ruin the Democratic party as a national organization. The unequivocal hard money declarations of the Eastern Democrats, of which the New York platform of last year is a specimen, prove that the Democracy of the East and of the West cannot be brought to harmonize, and that the party will be fatally weakened by internal dissensions on the most important questions of the time. If the Democrats lose Ohio on such a platform the Republicans will have stayed the "tidal wave." If, on the other hand, the Democrats should carry the State their national convention next year will be a scene of conflict which will demoralize the party.

REPLY TO "GRANGER."

PORTLAND, July 1, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I wish to say a few words in answer to an article by "Granger," in your issue of the 23d ult. He seems to be somewhat disturbed by our present business arrangements and prospects, and sees difficulties and dangers that may not be quite so clear to others. Personal interest may have warped his vision to some extent.

On the whole, I have no great fault to find, but would urge consideration and forbearance. Our order is new, and most of us are unaccustomed to business, our executive committee as well as the rank and file; and we must expect blunders, and have patience until they can be corrected. The plan of business organization that he mentions, presented by the committee on transportation and co-operation, I don't rightly understand; and as it was not published in the proceedings, I am unable to say just what its provisions were; but I have heard that a word or two changed while on its passage, destroyed its force. If so, of course we were left as we were before, and deeming some kind of organization necessary, our executive committee, under their general powers of direction and supervision, saw fit to take the steps they did. Whether they did just the best thing they could have done, under the circumstances, is a question, but having the general good of the order at heart, they deserve our confidence and support, and should receive it. While I fully agree with "Granger" as to the importance of strictly adhering to the law, something was necessary to be done, and they did it as second best. And let us kindly counsel their motives, and assist them to discharge their duties.

Let us march on unitedly, bearing and forbearing, and we shall soon be able to profit by past experience, and lay a foundation to build upon that cannot be moved. Unfortunately, from motives of economy, the great majority of the brotherhood are kept uninformed of some of their duties for want of the necessary printed matter to assist them, so that, instead of their not doing better, it is a wonder that they do as well, with the notions and rulings of both National and State Grange should be in the hands of, and accessible to all, so that we could act intelligently. Until that is the condition of things, we must necessarily act without concert, and can arrive at no proper conclusions. Still, as before remarked, with patience and forbearance, we can overcome all obstacles and rectify all mistakes. Then let us approach the subject in the true spirit, kindly advise with each other, and if we find that mistakes have been made, steps taken without sufficient law or authority, go diligently to work, attributing no evil intentions, remedy the evils, devise better plans and faithfully assist in carrying them out. I agree with "Granger" that while business is a main object of our order, and must go hand in hand with our social organization, each independent of the other, except that all questions touching the by appeal to the executive committee, who by a law must stand aloof from all business complications, that they may be impartial judges. This seems to be "Granger's" leading idea. A proper code of laws and a strict adherence to them, in proper business organization under a board of control, elected by the order independent of it, so long as acting within its sphere, subject only to executive interference, when it exceeds its limits. Incur in all this, and will work as hard as any to secure the adoption of wise measures. I only ask for time, forbearance, free, full and candid discussion, and have no doubts all will be well. Let every man, who has a word to say, say it through the press or by letter, that a general understanding may be arrived at before the meeting of the State Grange, when, laying aside all personal and partisan feelings, all wounds can be healed, and wise and prudent measures adopted, and we will go on our way rejoicing in new strength and vigor. To accomplish so desirable a result, every subordinate grange in our jurisdiction should go diligently to work—discuss and compare notes, and do all in their power to disseminate information, and arrive at an understanding of their wants and wishes. Our deputies, also, should make the theme of their discourse, and up all the interest they can. Information is what we want and all we want to enable us to act in harmony, and without harmony we can do nothing. A PATRON.

A WASHINGTON VERDICT.

Washington City juries must be fearfully and wonderfully made. All will recollect the safe burglary case and how a lot of scalawags escaped when the evidence appeared to all persons except the jurors to be conclusive against them. Now follows the case of Hinds, the mail contract swindler. His trial for bribing an officer in the Postoffice Department took place on the 19th of June, and the result, according to the New York Times' report was a scandal to the courts of justice. Notwithstanding the fact remarked by the Times that "it would not be difficult to show that the prosecution has been a series of blunders," there was still no excuse for the jury's letting the fellow off. The report says the charge of the judge was clear, and the jury had nothing to do but determine whether the evidence was sufficient to sustain the allegations of the indictment; that nobody who heard the evidence doubted it, "and it seemed impossible for the jury to doubt it." But the jury returned a verdict of acquittal, the reason given therefor being that they "thought it unfair for Hinds alone to bear the consequences of the crime of all parties to the transaction." Now if prosecutions are instituted against the rest of the gang they will be let off on the ground that it would be unfair for them to suffer when Hinds is allowed to go free.

THE NEW MOTIVE POWER.

Engineering and mechanical circles in Philadelphia are in a ferment over the discovery of a new motive power which, it is averred, surpasses every power heretofore known. The discoverer is a man named Keeley, and the thing itself is known as the Keeley Motor. Just what it is like, is kept a secret, but the letter writers say its vitality is in a little machine that one could carry in his pocket. Its wonderful efficiency is vouched for by a good many persons who have been allowed to witness the operations of a small model machine. The discoverer says he had been for years experimenting on a new fangled engine which he had partially invented, when he stumbled on the Motor by accident. He is now, he declares, manufacturing a motor of 170 horse-power, which will be exhibited to the public as soon as he obtains his foreign patents—in a few weeks at most. The thing is really making a considerable stir; but it smacks so strongly of humbuggery that discreet people do not credit the reports, and a collateral circumstance of possible significance is the fact that Mr. Keeley and a few friends have formed a corporation for the manufacture and sale of the Motors. Corporations, of late years, have stock, and stock is a nice thing to sell when it is desirable to raise the wind by getting something for nothing.

THE TRUE TEST.

The Alameda Independent offers some advice to voters of California, which will commend itself to the good sense of every person whose judgment is not too much biased by party prejudice to comprehend the situation. Voters of Oregon cannot do better than to apply the test here laid down to all candidates no matter whether they be of the Republican, the Democratic or the Independent party. Says the paper referred to:

The great lesson that our people have been slowly taught, and are beginning now to understand, is, that party nominations are a farce, and a foolery, when not a cheat and a mockery, and that they must examine for themselves into the antecedents and life, the ability, industry, honesty and worth of the man they choose, for public position. They must do what the merchant does when he wants a confidential clerk, what the business man does when he wants a reliable agent, what the employer does when he wants a faithful workman. These men cannot rely upon the vague recommendations of unknown parties, nor yet upon the positive promises and ready professions of the candidates themselves; nor will they do it. Yet the whole system of party nominations makes them habitually do this very thing in choosing men for office. And the higher the office, the greater the outside pressure brought to bear upon them to crush out every effort at, free thought or judicial investigation. This is a very great evil, that calls for effective remedies.

The only sure remedy is to disregard party nominations, and look to the personal character and capacity of the candidates—their fitness for the place,—and not the endorsement they have procured by intrigue, promises, solicitations, influence or money. That is their condemnation; not their recommendation nor justification, and most surely no endorsement at all for any thinking man or any lover of his country or district. Now is a good time to apply this rule. This is the true test for all. And at a time when there are three parties in the field, without any distinctively marked doctrines or dogmas of either national State or local import, to separate and distinguish the one from the other, it is the very best time possible to fall back upon this true test of official merit. Let every reader, then, henceforth, act upon this maxim: Change your candidate by personal character, and not by party nomination.

Among the Uruguayan exiles lately landed in the United States were four sons of Gen. Flores, the President of Uruguay, who was assassinated in the revolution of 1868. So reads the dispatch which announces their arrival at Charleston. This modest statement of the high connections of these young men naturally excites interest in, if not sympathy, with them. The story is not all told, however, when thus much is told. It is necessary to add, in order that the story may be complete, that three of these four sons of an illustrious sire were prominent leaders in the revolt which resulted in the assassination of their father, one of them being the chief man in the movement. The knowledge of this fact, if it should become general, would, no doubt, dampen the ardor with which these exiled patriots are received in the United States.

We publish this morning another letter from a Patron of Husbandry, concerning the management of the business of the grangers. We cheerfully give place to communications tending to assist the Patrons in their work; but Patrons must bear in mind that we are not in a position to know the real merits of any discussion upon the rules and requirements of the order. We should be sorry to publish anything that might create any discord or misunderstanding among members of the order.

Will correspondents please to bear in mind that we have no space to devote to words which are not necessary to the expression of the writer's meaning? When an idea has been once clearly expressed, every additional word only obscures it, and mars the composition.

CROPS IN THE WEST.

From close beside the grasshopper districts comes this cheering letter:

KANSAS CITY, June 20, 1875.

From parties just returned, as well as from letters received, it appears that the crop prospects in Kansas were never known to be as good as now. Large farmers in the western portion of the State are telegraphing here for harvest hands, and complain that they cannot get men enough for harvest. The harvesting in Southern Kansas has commenced and the average is immense. Some of the comparatively new counties claim 1,000,000 bushels of wheat and a rough estimate of wheat for the south western part of the State is 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 bushels. This enormous amount will be more than duplicated in the west and other sections. The great fear is that hands enough cannot be obtained to harvest the crop.

Specials from central Missouri, as well as from other parts outside the grasshopper belt, are equally encouraging. In the grasshopper belt an enormous average of corn has been planted, more by fifty per cent. than any previous year, and the frequent rains and hot sunny days which have prevailed for a week or more have raised high hopes of a big corn crop.

A MAN.—It may be of interest to some of our readers to know what party candidate we shall support in the coming congressional election. We can tell better after the nominations are made. We have our political preference, of course, but that should be a secondary consideration. The election of the best man is, with us, the first thought. Who is the best qualified, both intellectually and morally, to represent Oregon at Washington? That is the man we want to vote for and to speak for. Like the Cynic philosopher, we are on the hunt of a MAN. And when it comes to a vote we think that the man should be the first consideration of every true man in the State.—Hillsboro Independent.

CITY.

EDUCATIONAL—EXCURSION.—From the Oregon Churchman of the 1st inst., we learn that the seventh year of St. Luke's parish school closed for summer vacation on Tuesday last. The school has gradually improved under the present teacher, Miss A. Loomis, the term opening with thirty-eight pupils. The examination showed thorough teaching, and gave general satisfaction to the patrons of the school, many of whom were present. The Church paper says: "The excursion from Vancouver to Oregon City last Thursday for the benefit of the building fund of St. Luke's school, Vancouver, was a very pleasant affair, and added to that fund about $45. The pleasure of the visit was very much enhanced by the attentions shown them by the church people of Oregon City. Especial credit is due Mr. West for his kindness in admitting the party and conveying the excursionists into the mills and showing their method of working."

BUILDING OPERATIONS.—In Portland the march of improvements goes steadily forward. At present writing the following buildings are being erected: A two-story brick on First and Washington streets, Opitz' stores, McCraken's buildings on Front street, Mr. Hewett's residence, Mr. Therkelsen's three houses, Estes & Cook's mill, and a story and a half house for Mr. Wetmore on Third street. Houses are in process of construction at College and Sixth streets, Jackson and Park, Madison and First, Main and Tenth, Jefferson and Thirteenth, Taylor and Park, Second and Montgomery, Park and Clay; also, Goodnough's brick block, First and Morrison, and a few others.

BOAT RACE.—The contest between the Bulletin and OREGONIAN crews will take place this afternoon for the silver cup presented by Mr. Ladd. The crews will be started at 6 o'clock sharp, from LaChapelle's boat house, pull down to Ross Island, turn buoy and return to place of starting. Mr. Joseph Buchtel has been selected as referee. The crew not in readiness at the appointed time will forfeit the race, and the crew which is prepared to start will row over the course and claim the cup. We trust there will be no delay, but that the rowing pass off satisfactorily to all concerned.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—Harmony Encampment No. 4, C. of R. C., of this city, elected the following officers for the ensuing half year: Theo. Turner, C.; Celia A. Whitney, J. C.; A. Johnson, R. S.; J. B. Roberts, F. S.; D. A. Maloney, T.; H. Knott, C. of H.; A. B. Powell, P. C.; G. G. Walling, O. G. Portland Encampment No. 1, I. C. R. C., elected the following officers for the next term: Enoch Turner, P. C.; J. H. Drummond, E. C.; E. V. Dubois, S. C.; Capt. J. H. Fisk, W. S.; C. A. Reeler, F. S.; Mrs. S. Robinson, T.; W. A. Nisbet, C. of H.; Miss Cora Thomas, J. C.

SCHOONER KATIE HERON.—We learn that the little schooner Katie Heron met with a mishap last Sunday while leaving Tillamook bay. She sailed with a full cargo, destined for Portland, and, before reaching the open sea, encountered a heavy sea, which drifted on the south spit, and remained there some time. Before getting off the schooner was considerably damaged, and was compelled to turn back for some slight repairs. From this the Katie Heron is doubtless sailed for Portland.

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED.—During the year commencing July 1, 1874, and ending July 1, 1875, the county clerk has issued the following number of marriage licenses: In 1874—August, 19; September, 16; October, 16; November, 16; December, 18; January, 9; February, 12; March, 8; April, 11; May, 9; June, 17. Up to July 3d three licenses have been issued, making a total of 167.

CITY TREASURER.—Mr. Jos. Bachman, the newly elected city treasurer, has filed his official bond, in the sum of $75,000, which has been approved by Mayor Failing, and has entered upon the responsible duties of his position. On Monday Mr. L. H. Lewisturned over to his successor in office all the moneys, papers and books in his possession.

Divine service will be held to-morrow in St. Stephen's chapel by the Rev. John Rosenberg, at 11 and 4 P. M. Holy communion at the morning service.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Jennie Ellsworth, charged with assault and battery, was fined $5 and costs.

Eugene Wood pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny, and was fined $60, and in default to go to the county jail for 30 days.

Jos. Lederman, arrested on a charge of perjury, waived an examination, and was held to answer in $1,000 bonds. He failed to furnish bail and is still in custody.

Thursday afternoon an examination was had in the cases of Dr. Wm. Caples, M. Dodge and Wm. Caples, Jr. After a preliminary examination the cases were taken under advisement until yesterday morning. The court discharged Dr. Caples and M. Dodge, but held Wm. Caples, Jr., to answer the charge before the grand jury in the sum of $500. Defendant gave the required bonds and was released from custody.

BALL AND BAT.

To-day a game will be played on the brick ball grounds at the end of Yamhill street, between the Multnomah Club of Portland and the Spartan Club of Vancouver. The game will commence at 11 o'clock A. M.

In order to give the picked nine, which is to contend for the prize next Monday at Oregon City, a little practice, a game will be played this afternoon at the academy grounds, commencing at 4 o'clock. The following picked players will give the nine, which are to play at Oregon City on Monday, a little "tussel:" Bagley, c; Oliver, p; Speck, s s, Snow, 1st base; Young, 2d; Jamberson, 3d b; Wilcox, l f; Hart, c f; Wiley, r f. A rattling game may be expected.

PUBLIC SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

On the occasion of the exhibition given in the evening by the pupils connected with the public schools of the city, Masonic Hall was densely crowded by anxious parents, patrons and friends. The exercises commenced promptly at a quarter past 7 o'clock, and lasted nearly three hours. Notwithstanding the great length of the programme, the large crowd and the overheated room, the interest of the audience did not flag or abate during the course of the evening. Strict attention was paid to the various exercises, as one rapidly succeeded the other, and excellent decorum was preserved. At the late hour at which the exhibition broke up we are unable to particularize, but will content ourself with complimenting all who participated in the exercises. The exercises consisted of singing, instrumental music, dialogues, reading, recitations, compositions and declamations. All acquitted themselves in a highly creditable manner, and teachers, parents and friends have every reason to feel gratified over the result.

At the conclusion of the exercises the graduating class appeared on the stage and were addressed by Rev. T. L. Eliot. The following are the names of those on whom were conferred the highest honors of the public school of Portland: Miss Julia Adams, Miss Mattie Lingow, Miss Dora Kindt, Mr. Horace Thielsen, and Mr. Cecil Beebe. This is the first class which has ever been honored with diplomas, by the public school of Portland, and it is a most gratifying event over which the friends of education should justly feel proud. Rev. Mr. T. L. Eliot, county superintendent, came forward and delivered to the class the following

ADDRESS.

Members of the Graduating Class of the High School: It devolves upon me, at the request of the board of directors, to now present you with the diplomas which describe the course of studies you have pursued during the past three years. They are also an evidence of the esteem in which you are held by your teachers, and of the good will with which the State and this community shall follow you into whatever sphere of life you enter.

For several reasons, this occasion is one of deep interest. To you, in closing the first chapter in an education which life and experience are to round out into full manhood and womanhood; to us, your friends, who have learned to respect you and to feel the workman's pride in your growth and promise; and to the citizens of this place as a testimony to the value of our institutions, the occasion of a first graduating class, brings unusual thoughts. We are standing at one of the turning points of affairs. You will pardon me for a moment's digression, while I briefly review the causes which should make this hour very suggestive and fruitful in the mind and life of the community.

We represent to-night the faith of our citizens in enlarging views of public education. In these graduating exercises we stand as one measure of the growth of public opinion in this city between to-day and ten years ago. Few then prophesied that the public schools would take first rank, both in lower and higher work; that their teachers would be second to none; that in appointments, discipline and methods of instruction, they would be very near the standard of older communities, where revered traditions and universal culture obtain. With no disposition to boast, and without judging ourselves to have apprehended, we have a right to the proud as we look about us this evening. These results have a history; they have not come of their own accord. They are the reward of constancy, perseverance and public faith. They illustrate the force of moral ideas, and taken in connection with other signs of the times, they forecast a certain future of enlightenment and progress to the city and State.

Throughout our land an impression is forming that we must look more and more to our public schools, for the supply of stable citizenship and conservative power. It is felt and seen that we must as a nation pour in life blood from this system as a heart, if we would balance chaotic material forces, and remain self-governed, without caste or schism, free from the tyranny of man or mob. The events of the past twenty years have educated the people in education; they have ceased to regard the public schools as the largess of a generous public, and recognize in them the chief security of the state. This system is no longer a ward, dependent upon the bounty of superior power—it is lifted into the power behind the throne, and is thrown into sustaining it only to maintain itself. As an important element of this growing conviction, we find a steady elevation of the standard. The high school has become as much a part of the system as the primary school. It furnishes the State with the subalterns and leaders, whose wider view and better mental training fill in the important gap between the highly cultured and the lowly cultured. In the leadership of the workshop, the field, the public press, in politics and, I will add, the home, secondary education is a vital element, and only when this ground is occupied by men and women whose education has advanced beyond the mere elements into a knowledge of relations, have we a guarantee that the ballast of the ship of state shall not shift in some storm and send it to the bottom, with all its precious freight of hope for mankind.

Young ladies and gentlemen, as graduates to-night of the first class from the high school, you share this earnest faith in higher culture, and I know, endeavor, by your comportment as citizens and members of society, to prove that the added years of school life have fitted you for increased usefulness and happiness. You will go out into the world prepared to face its problems with courage, its disappointments with fortitude, and its successes with calm self contained minds. You have but poorly studied if you have not learned that character is the first requisite in life, and that your knowledge or mental power is meant to form and vitalize purposes of honorable toil, and fit head and hand to worthy aims. We hope you have acquired the invaluable habit of analyzing everything into its elements—that the world of mind and matter is thus potentially yours, and we also hope you have learned something of combining power: that you at least discern the method of all true constructive work. In life, as in the school room, to take apart and to put together are the poles of thought and action. Much of the mental drill of your secondary course had for its end the development of these simple energies. He who can resolve appearances into essentials and non-essentials—who can strike to the center and relate all else to it—who can define substance from shadow, and knows what to sacrifice and what to save; who, finally, works always with a plan and from a base, cannot fail of a high degree of usefulness in any pursuit.

You will find in almost every portion of your work that others by your side, through pretension or tinsel, can gain a cheap applause, while solid merit seems unbonored. But you will not mistake or compromise. Reserve your powers for nobler contests and other laurels "the poor alms of men's breath.

"The smallest streams
Of water greenest meadows; and the bird
That flutters least is longest on the wing."

In placing in your hands these diplomas, we commend you to the world; and may your sense of responsibility to God quicken all your powers and purposes to use the talents committed to you for His glory and the good of mankind.

Presenting the diplomas, followed the address, when the audience was allowed to retire.

BRIEF NOTES.

Where are you going to celebrate?

To-morrow will be the go-lorious Fourth.

The Cornell road will be open by the last of the week.

To-day the steamer Ajax will sail from San Francisco for Portland.

Justin Marvis killed a badger near North Yamhill last week, and the skin has been preserved to be stuffed. It is the first animal of the kind that has been killed in this region of country for a long time. It weighed about 50 pounds.

A lady and daughter stepped out of the street car the other evening just as a buggy came traveling along, and had not the driver, with considerable coolness, checked the animals, we might have had to record the sudden death of two persons.

Says the Star: A husband, who has recently been living with his wife on Third street, by been living with his wife on Third street, treated her so cruelly a short time ago that she was forced to leave his presence and seek protection with kind neighbors living near. Its said that he beat and otherwise abused her, said that the trouble was caused by whisky.

PERSONAL.

The Baker City Herald of June 30th says: "Captain Myrick, of Connor creek, we are pleased to say, has recovered from his illness so as to be about. Himself and wife were in town this week.

REVIVAL MEETINGS.

The attendance at the morning meeting was very light, not over fifty being present, yet we doubt there being a single one present but would say that it was one of the best meetings of the season. The special train that was chartered to go to Forest Grove was filled to its utmost capacity, and one walking through the train before it started and noticing the countenances of the passengers, would have said that they were all wide awake and ready for sharp, quick and decisive work. As the train left Stark street the passengers broke out singing, "Yes, Jesus loves me," and as it reached the Fourth street siding the grand old chorus "Hold the Fort" was ringing out upon the morning air, and as it finally started off to its destination the last thing to be heard was the voice of prayer raised in supplication for those present and for the success of the meeting to be held at Forest Grove. Rev. Mr. Bentley led the morning meeting, Bishop Peck and Dr. Thompson participating.

The excursion yesterday was such a grand success that an excursion committee was appointed and arrangements made by which the E. N. Cooke will leave her dock this morning at 9o'clock for Oregon City. Returning, will leave Oregon City at 4 P. M. Fare for the round trip 50 cents. Come one and all and let us have a grand rally for the Master. Last evening the rink was crowded to its utmost extent, many having to stand. The meeting was opened by Rev. Mr. Chattin with prayer. Mr. Hammond then came forward and said: The Bible I have often heard compared to the starry heavens. Astronomers spend a lifetime in studying the heavens, and when they come to die how little do they know. And so it is with the Bible; theologians spend a lifetime in studying its grand truth, and yet when they get through life's journey how little do they comprehend its grand teachings; and yet the most illiterate and ignorant man under the teachings of the Son of Righteousness may be as familiar with it as the most learned men of the earth. He read some lines that had been written in his Bible by a stranger, comparing its different parts to portions of the earth. Prayer was then offered by Bishop Peck, when Gen. Howard came forward and made a few earnest remarks. He spoke of the attack made upon Mr. Hammond by the evening paper, and said that he was glad of it that while it was made in enmity and hate, and for the purpose of injuring the meeting, yet it would have a different effect, for many would be brought out by curiosity to see the man, and will then learn the falsity of the reports and it may be the means of bringing them to a knowledge of the way of life. Dr. Lindsley said that it had been given out that to-night was to be the last appearance of Mr. Hammond here. He then gave a number of reasons showing the necessity of his still continuing his labors here, and said that, at the earnest request of all the ministers present and of a large delegation of laymen, he had consented to stay awhile longer. By request of Gen. Howard, a rising vote was taken and at least nine-tenths of those present signified that they wished he would stay. Some one started the song "Go on, Go on," and one verse was sung. Rev. Mr. Pierce came to his feet and said he could say amen to that, and could give other reasons for his staying. He said that a Christian lady had come to him and asked him if any one had been converted. If any one doubted let them come to him, or any of the pastors of the churches here, and they should have evidence to satisfy the most skeptical.

Mr. Hammond then gave out his text: "Behold I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice and will open the door, I will come in and sup with him and he with me." Mr. Hammond proceeded to speak of the different ways in which God knocks at the door of the sinner's heart, first, by the news of the revival, and under this head the reporters came in for a good rap from him; second, by means of children. God often knocks at the door of the sinner's heart by means of little children. I have known many a father who did not care a snap for my preaching find their hearts softening and melting at the story of Jesus as told by a little son or daughter who had been converted, and had drank of the water of life. O, I love to preach to little children. They are always at home, and are found living in the front rooms of the heart, and are always ready to open the door. While you, who have grown old in sin, and are living in the back rooms of the heart, and do not hear or pretend not to hear him knocking, why, I often wonder that He will keep on calling and knocking at the door of your old, withered and dried-up hearts. Many ways by which the knocks were given, and also some of the bolts and locks by which he is kept out. The sermon was fully two hours long, and was listened to with attention to the close. The usual inquiry meeting was held at the close of the sermon. Morning praise meeting at 8:30. No services this evening. To-morrow services will be held at the different churches in the forenoon, and at the rink at the usual hour.

THE REVIVAL EXCURSION TO FOREST GROVE.

It is the privilege of great minds to elevate others to their own standard and inspire as well as perform noble actions. The eighty-two excursionists who went yesterday on the Forest Grove holiday revival excursion, got new insight into Mr. Hammond's great power of concentrating labor to saving souls.

The day's excursion was the essence of all of Portland's meetings. The happiness of eternity for some souls may be concentrated on the moments of insight at those too short meetings at Forest Grove, as Homer said: "The gods ever give to mortals their apportioned share of reason only one day."

Mr. Hammond had unusual freedom of language, an overflow of joy, and his earnestness riveted the attention of all. Interspersed by his ingenious items. Those who know him can be most always draw the nearest to him. The excursionists were merry, and on the up and return trip, many a song was rendered with rapture and prayers of blessings and thanks were several times heard.

The up-train was delayed 20 minutes at Beaverton, and some of the converts went out and hunted up and gathered quite a meeting of people and told them what the Lord had done for them. Many a moistened eye was the consequence.

At 11 o'clock, all joined the Forest Grove people at the Congregational church, and for half an hour blended their voices and spirits in song.

A great number spoke during the short praise meeting.

The pith of Rev. Mr. Pierce's remarks was "that religion is not solemn."

Dr. Lindsley's greatest throb of joy was that "precious souls were being awakened."

Rev. Mr. Eaton told of two women in his experience who awakened on the same day, through prayers, and some were brought into the fold. He felt that the spirit of God was there present, and that some would be saved.

Rev. Dr. Chandler was present, and though paralyzed and speechless, his presence caused many to weep for joy. His manifested feelings spoke louder than words.

Fifteen ministers were present, and all added testimony in some lucid manner.

Zed Wilson melted down the house with his delight that he had found the Lord and the pleasure religion gives to a reformed man. He thanked the ladies who went to his cell to pray for him, and broke down because words could not express the thankfulness of his heart for all who labored with him to bring him to such a Saviour.

A number of other converts could not keep their seats, and arose with one sentence of praise.

At 12:30 the Portlanders were kindly escorted to the Grove, and furnished with such refreshments as they had not with them—the Forest Grove friends trying to pay back in bodily comforts for the spiritual entertainment just relished.

During the subsequent meeting of about one hour, Mr. Hammond spoke about twenty minutes, all his illustrations centering on Jesus, bearing all our sins, giving himself for us, bringing conviction home to every heart, that Jesus died for them alone. Mr. Hammond asked all in the church to bow their heads and pray while he should pray and tell an anecdote. It could be all summed up, though occupying several minutes, in gratitude to Jesus for saving. Mr. Hammond called for all Christians to arise; then for all who wanted to be Christians; a few were yet seated, and he called for those to arise who felt they ought to be Christians, when all arose, excepting a few who thought they were crowded out and had taken refuge in the gallery.

At the close of the noon-day refreshment at Forest Grove, Dr. Atkinson made the following motion: "That a revival excursion committee be appointed, whose duty it should be to arrange excursions to surrounding places for holding revival meetings." Adopted. Committee: Wesley Jackson (chairman), Revs. Dr. Lindsley, Pierce, Bentley, Eaton and Atkinson, E. J. Northrup and Jas. Steel.

WINNEMUCCA AND OREGON RAILROAD.

In the Daily Avalanche of June 23d, we find the following:

We had a pleasant call this afternoon from G. W. Colby, of California, and Mr. Geo. E. Strong, formerly connected with the Portland Oregonian. Mr. Colby is a civil engineer, and both of the gentlemen are connected with the preliminary survey that is being made of the Winnemucca and Oregon railroad route, to which editorial reference was made in our columns a few days ago. They left the surveying party in Warner valley and came in by private conveyance, via Stein's mountain, Camp C. F. Smith and the Dayhoe ferry. Mr. Colby leaves this evening for San Francisco on some business connected with the enterprise and will be back before long. Mr. Strong will immediately return to the surveying camp in Warner valley.

From these gentlemen we obtain considerable interesting information in relation to the proposed road. Among other things, they inform us that it will certainly be built, and that work will be commenced on it at no very distant day—perhaps this season. The Central Pacific Railroad Company are heavily interested in the enterprise and will push it forward with all possible speed as soon as the preliminaries are settled.

The route as at present projected will run from Winnemucca to the vicinity of the Summit Springs; thence up Quin's River Valley, crossing between the Pueblo range and Stein's Mountain; thence across the country to Warner Lake Valley thence in a northwesterly direction across the three forks of the Des Chutes to the line of the Oregon and California Railroad on Sprague river, which runs into Klamath Lake. There is plenty of water everywhere along the route, with a heavy growth of timber in Warner Valley and at various other points.

The computed distance from Winnemucca to Portland, by way of Eugene City, is 450 miles, 10 miles less than from Winnemucca to San Francisco. It is said that no tunneling will be required, and the grades will be much easier than on any other line of railroad on the Pacific coast. No trouble is anticipated from snow blockades in the winter season.

The road will deviate from a direct line and come as near to Silver City as possible, in order to secure the Idaho trade as well as that of Eastern Oregon.

The Daily Oregonian.

THAT STONE BY THE ROADSIDE.

Where the town of Randolph now carries on its busy traffic, Egbert Bacon's farm once was located. Egbert Bacon was my grandfather. His farm covered more than seven hundred good acres, and he considered himself wealthy, as he undoubtedly was. He started in life a poor boy, and his honest accumulation was the result of toil.

Grandfather was a very peculiar man. Many persons considered him penurious, but he was really liberal; and from the fact that his charities were given with secrecy, people supposed that he never contributed to good works. It was in his old age (and he lived to a great period) that a company of speculators bought his land, because of the fine water-power that ran through it, and as soon as they erected mills the place began to go forward until Bacon's farm was a thing of the past. I can recollect when the first mill was built, and I well remember my boyish curiosity in watching the mechanics who worked upon it.

My grandmother was about the same age as her husband. She did not long survive his death, and I missed a good counsellor when she left me. Grandfather expected me to be a farmer, but as I had never had a taste for hard work, my thoughts and inclinations went another way. Of course, he was not at all pleased with my stubbornness, but my good grandmother always stepped between me and his wrath, and shielded me from his displeasure.

The old gentleman was a sturdy man at seventy years. He invariably dressed in brown clothes and wore a broad brim to his low-crowned hat that he might easily have been taken for a Quaker at first sight. But get him angry once (and his irritability was easily aroused) and he would let fly such sharp and vehement sentences that it was sometimes difficult to imagine they were not profane.

I was nineteen years old, and was deep in love with Sallie Miller, the young lady who played the organ at the Cross Roads church, and was the finest dancer among all the girls in the country. Grandfather had conceived a dislike for Sallie, because she was a musician. He had no ear for music, and was "not moved by concord of sweet sounds," and nothing so nearly excited his ire as to scrape a violin within his hearing, or strike a chord upon the piano.

Much against my grandfather's inclination, he permitted me to enter the law office of Mr. Smart as a student. Had it not been for the good offices of my grandmother, I should never have had this wish of my life gratified. But she smoothed the way for my grandfather's consent. But he never ceased to ridicule me for my pretensions, and positively refused to give me his consent to marry Sallie Miller. It would only have been a waste thing in me to cross the old gentleman's whims, for I was his heir, and he could have found another without much difficulty; so I never urged my case, but humored him in every way I could think of.

Once when I was home on a brief leave of absence, we were sitting around the open fireplace and there was cheery fire of hickory wood. Grandfather was smoking his pipe, and alternately looking at the burning logs and my grandmother's fitted cap.

"What are you thinking about, father?" she inquired. She always called him by that name.

"I was thinking," he slowly replied, taking the pipe from between his lips, and dropping his hand upon his knees, "that a few years hence, and one won't see good hickory logs burning upon andirons. Stoves and grates and that infernal coal that makes gas enough to suffocate a household, will supply the place of our old-fashioned fires."

"I ought to have held my tongue, for he was not speaking to me, but I wanted to show off some of my smartness, and so I replied:

"That is to say," rejoined he, "you have no mechanical ingenuity. One need not be a clockmaker to do this. I have done it, and can do it again, and I am no clockmaker."

"How unreasonable you are father," suggested my grandmother.

He did not appear to notice her remark, but continued.

"Can you turn a somersault?"

"I never tried," I replied.

"Then you are not as expert as a clown. For the life of me, I can't see what good you are going to do in the world."

"And I can't see," said my dear old grandmother, "on this occasion, there will be for the boy to mend clocks or turn somersaults. To hear you talk, one would think you had nothing to leave him but your advice, and that is not of the most encouraging nature."

"A young man should rely upon himself," returned my grandfather. "Riches take wings. I've managed to hold my property together pretty well; but how do I know he will do so when you and I are gone. He'll marry Miss Miller. What sort of a wife will she make? Smart with her heels, no doubt, but these won't serve to keep a family from going headlong to destruction."

"Sallie Miller is a very prudent and useful girl," replied my grandmother. "I don't see what you find amiss in her."

"Don't you?" he returned. Then he relapsed into silence, and smoked and looked into the fire.

By-and-by he got up and walked out of the room, and then my dear old grandmother took my hand and held it in her own, and told me not to fret, that she would bring my grandfather to think better of my sweetheart.

I thanked her ever so much, but I had little hope that she would be successful.

About this time my grandfather was selling some property in the town where I was reading law, and it became necessary for him to go there and sign some deeds and receive the money for the sale. At his request I accompanied him.

It was nearly evening when his business was finished, and we set out on our return home. Four thousand dollars, the proceeds of the sale, my grandfather carried in bank notes on his person, as it was too late to make a deposit in bank. The old gentleman was in a good humor, and talked pleasantly as we drove along. My mind was full of schemes just at that time, as to how I would support Sallie Miller, if I married her before my grandfather died. I little dreamed that home a way would be opened to me. We were going down a steep hill, and it was now quite dark, when the horse stumbled and fell, and in an instant a shaft was snapped in twain. I sprang out of the wagon and grandmother quickly followed.

The horse, in his fall, had become entangled in the harness and lay helpless upon the earth. The moon was just rising, and gave but an uncertain light, for the sky was full of fleecy clouds, but still it was bright enough to perceive grandfather drop the package of four thousand dollars as he stooped down to free the horse. There it lay at my feet and he was unconscious of his loss. Another instant I had picked it up and was holding it behind me, irresolute how to act. You will understand I didn't intend to steal it, but somehow or other I had an indistinct idea that I could make the occasion subserve my aims. There was a large flat stone by the roadside. I had trapped a rabbit there once, and I knew there was considerable cavity beneath it. An instant later and the four thousand dollars were deposited in the hole.

The shafts being tied up, we got on our way again, but it was midnight ere we arrived at home.

Grandfather had not been within doors five minutes ere he discovered the loss of his money. He wasn't angry, but he was frightened. It was the first time in my life I have ever witnessed him alarmed.

"I've lost my money," he exclaimed, as he drew his hand from his coat-pocket. Then he slid down, like a helpless child, into a chair, and the cold perspiration broke out in large drops on his forehead. His face became very white. Grandmother was standing by his side.

"Never mind," she exclaimed; "grandson will go back and look for it, and I dare say will find it, too."

"Four thousand dollars don't lay long on any road, however unfrequented, and the one we traveled to-night has always some one passing over it. No, the money won't be found. Ah, me!" and the old man lay back in his chair like one ill.

For an instant my heart reproached me, and I was almost ready to confess my trick, for my grandfather looked the picture of despair.

"I'll go and saddle a horse and ride back. I suppose you must have lost it when the horse was being freed from the harness. 'Tis only three miles back, and the moon is now up. It won't take me long to ride it."

"I think I'll go with you," said the old man. "Don't think of it," I replied. "Trust me, grandfather; if I can't mend a clock or turn a somersault, you will acknowledge I was always a good hunter. I'll bet you anything you dare that I'll recover every dollar of your money."

"Do you think so?" he asked, grasping me by the hand. "You must not mind what I said to you, my boy, about being good for nothing. You are my grandson, and my heir, too. All I have will be yours some day."

"There's one thing you won't agree to let me have," I replied.

He waved his hand.

"I know what you are going to say," he answered. "Well, your grandmother has been talking to me on that subject. Go along, boy, bring me back the four thousand dollars and I'll allow you to marry Sallie Miller.

I made a spring for the door and was hurrying to the stable, when the old gentleman followed.

"Remember my conditions, the four thousand dollars I lost. Find that for me and you can marry Sallie Miller, and I'll provide for you. But if you fail to bring my money, I say nay, now, and perhaps for a good while to come."

I flew along that road as fast as good horseflesh could carry me; but I felt like a guilty wretch as I knelt down by the stone and passed my hand beneath it. A gleam of happiness crossed my heart as I held the package in my grasp.

My first impulse was to hurry home as fast as I had come thither. But reflecting that my speedy return might throw a suspicion upon the affair, I allowed the horse to walk nearly the whole distance.

Grandmother met me at the door. She said that grandfather had been counting the minutes since I left. He was still in the sitting room.

I held up the package, and grandmother kissed me.

"You are a good boy," she said, "and I'll see that you are grandfather does the right thing by Sallie Miller."

"Here you are, sir," I shouted, coming into the old man's presence, and placing the package in his hands.

"Thank Heaven!" he devoutly exclaimed. "I had given it up, my boy. Did you have much of a search? Where did you discover it?"

"Just where I said you lost it. On the spot where we broke the shaft."

Grandfather examined the package and found it all right. Then he hugged me and pulled my ear, saying:

"Now, you scamp, you can marry Sallie Miller. Bring her home, here, for she, no doubt, requires a good deal of instruction in housekeeping, and your grandmother will make her fit to keep your house from going to waste."

Reader, these things happened a many a year ago. All the landmarks about the farm have long passed away, but there is still a large flat stone by the roadside, as one rides out from the town of Randolph, and I never gaze upon it without recollecting how intimately my destiny and the old man's are connected.

Legal Tenders in Portland—buying, 85½; selling 86½.

Coin Exchange on San Francisco ¼ percent, premium.

Currency Exchange on San Francisco ½ per cent. premium.

Coin Exchange on New York 1 per cent. premium.

Currency Exchange on New York ½ per cent. premium.

Telegraphic transfers on New York 1½ per cent. premium.

Gold Bars 750 par.

The telegraph reports a continued upward tendency in the gold market and it is evident that the Wall street sharps are endeavoring to make some point at the expense of the country's finances, as the foreign demand for specie has slackened and the disbursements of the July interest, with the sale of five millions in gold by order of the secretary of the treasury during the month, ought to have brought about a decline rather than an advance.

In our local money market the monthly collections show no material change since the 1st of June, though it is claimed in some quarters that the circulating capital is larger than at any time before for a good many months.

Trade matters are still very quiet, and since our report yesterday no change has occurred. The outgoing steamer to-day took nearly a full cargo, embracing nearly 50,000 pounds wool and a very large quantity of salmon. The market for this latter article is reported to look slightly better, and it is hoped that our fisheries will in some proportion make good the losses sustained last year.

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship John L. Stephens dropped down the river to-day. She will take on a large cargo of salmon from the ports on the lower Columbia, and will probably not go to sea until Monday.

The steamship Ajax will leave San Francisco for this port to-morrow, with usual list of freight and passengers.

The steamship Gussie Telfair, from Victoria and Port Townsend, is due.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alterative, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake, with the iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and the worst forms of Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure health returns.

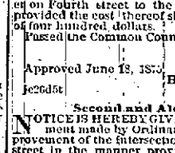
HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER



This Standard article is compounded with the greatest care, and its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching, and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

Buckingham's Dye,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and thoroughly produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.
